The City of Geneseo is leading an initiative to improve the recreational function and value of Richmond Hill Park. The park is a core recreational destination for the City of Geneseo and the surrounding community.

The City and design team are looking for your feedback on the preliminary design. The first of two community meetings was held on October 17th and an online survey was available to solicit community input on preferences for park improvements. Based on that input, a preliminary design has been prepared and will be presented at the second community meeting on January 11th. Can't make the community meeting? That's no problem, simply go to the website listed to the left between January 12th and 26th to see the preliminary design plan and provide your input.
